

Appendix 6 of the Code of Conduct for Electoral Commissioners: Nolan Principles of Public Life | Electoral Commission Search Appendix 6 of the Code of Conduct for Electoral Commissioners: Nolan Principles of Public Life You are in the Code of Conduct for Electoral Commissioners section Home Commissioners Code of Conduct for Electoral Commissioners On this page Selflessness Integrity Objectivity Accountability Openness Honesty Leadership First published: 24 January 2023 Last updated: 18 June 2023 Introduction The 'Nolan Principles' code of practice has been written with regard to the seven principles of public life identified by the Nolan Committee in their First Report on Standards in Public Life in May 1995 and subsequently endorsed by the Government. Selflessness Holders of public office should take decisions solely in terms of the public interest. They should not do so in order to gain financial or other material benefits for themselves, their family, or their friends. Integrity Holders of public office should not place themselves under any financial or other obligation to an outside individual or organisation that might influence them in the performance of their official duties. Objectivity In carrying out public business, including making public appointments, awarding contracts, or recommending individuals for rewards and benefits, holders of public office should make choices on merits. Accountability Holders of public office are accountable for their decisions and actions to the public and must submit themselves to whatever scrutiny is appropriate to their office. Openness Holders of public office should be as open as possible about all the decisions and actions they take. They should give reasons for their decisions and restrict information only when the wider public interest clearly demands. Honesty Holders of public office have a duty to declare any private interests relating to their public duties and to take steps to resolve any conflicts arising in a way that protects the public interest. Leadership Holders of public office should promote and support these principles by leadership and example.