

A person remanded in custody | Electoral Commission Search A person remanded in custody You are in the Other registration options section Home Voter Other registration options Your location: Change England Northern Ireland Scotland Wales Overseas We're showing you content for . Select 'change' to choose a different location. On this page Register to vote Register to vote Register to vote Register to vote Help with the form Help with the form Help with the form Help with the form Filling in your form Filling in your form Filling in your form Filling in your form Where to send your completed form Where to send your completed form Where to send your completed form Where to send your completed form Ways to vote First published: 7 April 2021 Last updated: 28 October 2022 Register to vote If you have been remanded in custody (but not convicted) and are detained in a prison or similar place, you can register at that address if you have been detained long enough for you to be considered a resident there. If you have only been in custody for a short time then you can register at the address where you would normally live if you were not in custody. Register to vote If you are a longer-term remand prisoner, you can also choose to register at an address where you would be living if you were not a prisoner on remand, or where you used to live before you were remanded in custody. To register to vote in this way, you'll need to download and complete a form for someone with no fixed or permanent address. Download register to vote form Register to vote If you have been remanded in custody (but not convicted) and are detained in a prison or similar place, you can register at that address if you have been detained long enough for you to be considered a resident there. If you have only been in custody for a short time then you can register at the address where you would normally live if you were not in custody. Register to vote If you are a longer-term remand prisoner, you can also choose to register at an address where you would be living if you were not a prisoner on remand, or where you used to live before you were remanded in custody. To register to vote in this way, you'll need to download and complete a form for someone with no fixed or permanent address. Download register to vote form Register to vote If you have been remanded in custody (but not convicted) and are detained in a prison or similar place, you can register at that address if you have been detained long enough for you to be considered a resident there. If you have only been in custody for a short time then you can register at the address where you would normally live if you were not in custody. Register to vote If you are a longer-term remand prisoner, you can also choose to register at an address where you would be living if you were not a prisoner on remand, or where you used to live before you were remanded in custody. To register to vote in this way, you'll need to download and complete a form for someone with no fixed or permanent address. Download register to vote form Register to vote If you have been remanded in custody (but not convicted) and are detained in a prison or similar place, you can register at that address if you have been detained long enough for you to be considered a resident there. If you have only been in custody for a short time then you can register at the address where you would normally live if you were not in custody. Register to vote If you are a longer-term remand prisoner, you can also choose to register at an address where you would be living if you were not a prisoner on remand, or where you used to live before you were remanded in custody. To register to vote in this way, you'll need to download and complete a form for someone with no fixed or permanent address. Download register to vote form Help with the form Help with the form If you're unable to print the application form, need it in an accessible format, or have any questions, contact the electoral services team at the local council for the address you're registering at for help. Help with the form Help with the form If you're unable to print the application form, need it in an accessible format, or have any questions, contact the electoral services team at the local council for the address you're registering at for help. Help with the form Help with the form If you're unable to print the application form, need it in an accessible format, or have any questions, contact the Electoral Registration Office for the address you're registering at for help. Help with the form Help with the form If you're unable to print the application form, need it in an accessible format, or have any questions, contact the Electoral Office for Northern Ireland . Filling in your form The application form includes instructions on how to fill it in correctly. Filling in your form The application form includes instructions on how to fill it in correctly. Filling in your form The application form includes instructions on how to fill it in correctly. Filling in your form The application form includes instructions on how to fill it in correctly. Where to send your completed form Once you have completed the form and made sure you have signed it, you need to send it to the electoral services team at the local council for the address you're registering at. You can send your form by post. The electoral services team at your local council may also accept a scanned copy of your form by email, but you should check with them first. Where to send your completed form Once you have completed the form and made sure you have signed it, you need to send it to the electoral services team at the local council for the address you're registering at. You can send your form by post. The electoral services team at your local council may also accept a scanned copy of your form by email, but you should check with them first. Where to send your completed form Once you have completed the form and made sure you have signed it, you need to send it to the Electoral Registration Office for the address you're registering at. You can send your form by post. The Electoral Registration Office for the area may also accept a scanned copy of your form by email, but you should check with them first. Where to send your completed form Once you have completed the form and made sure you have signed it, you need to send it by post to the Electoral Office for Northern Ireland . Find where to send your form Enter the postcode for the address you're registering at to find get the address of your electoral services team Enter a postcode Submit Postcode Find where to send your form Enter the postcode for the address you're registering at to find get the address of your electoral services team Enter a postcode Submit Postcode Find where to send your form Enter the postcode for the address you're registering at to get the address of the local Electoral Registration Office Enter a postcode Submit Postcode Ways to vote Apply to vote by post Apply to vote by proxy Your location: Change England Northern Ireland Scotland Wales Overseas We're showing you content for . Select 'change' to choose a different location.