

Selective hustings | Electoral Commission

Are you holding a hustings? You are in the Are you holding a hustings? section Home Are you holding a hustings? View the navigation tree Go to main guidance section: Are you holding a hustings? Non-selective hustings Non-selective hustings: Good practice recommendations Selective hustings Accounting for the spending Other considerations for your event Charities running a hustings Selective hustings A selective hustings is a hustings that can reasonably be regarded as intended to influence voters to vote for or against particular political parties or candidates – for example, if you invite some candidates or parties to your hustings and do not have impartial reasons for excluding the others. Spending on a selective hustings may, in certain circumstances, be regulated and count towards your spending limit or registration threshold in the run up to an election. Last updated: 24 May 2021 Book traversal links for Selective hustings Non-selective hustings: Good practice recommendations Accounting for the spending