

Access, supply and inspection of election documents after a Senedd election

This document provides guidance on access, supply and inspection of election documents after a Senedd election. It should be read alongside the access and supply part in our running electoral registration guidance. We have also produced an access and supply checklist alongside this document.

For details on the retention and inspection of candidates' election spending, see chapter 2 of Part F: 'After the declaration of result' of our guidance for Returning Officers. Further detailed guidance on data protection legislation is contained in our resource on the General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018.

It is important to maintain a document retention policy to demonstrate your compliance with the principles of processing personal data as set out in data protection legislation. Your document retention policy should set out the following for all documents you receive and hold:

- whether the document contains personal data
- the lawful basis on which any personal data was collected (see 'Lawful basis for processing' in our resource on General Data Protection Regulation and the Data Protection Act 2018)
- your retention period
- your rationale for the retention period

In some cases this will be straightforward since electoral legislation will require a set period for which documents are retained. In other cases, you will need to make a local decision and justify this in your document retention policy.

Documents not available for public inspection

The following documentation is not available for public inspection, except by court order:

- ballot papers
- completed corresponding number lists
- certificates of employment on duty on polling day

These documents can only be accessed if the if the High Court or a county court is satisfied by evidence on oath that access is required for one of the following reasons:

- for instituting or maintaining a prosecution for an offence in relation to ballot papers
- for the purpose of an election petition or judicial review

An appeal to any decision on access by a county court can be made to the High Court.

Applications do not have to be made in open court: they can be made by a judge from the relevant court either in open court or otherwise.

Nomination papers

Nomination papers can only be inspected by certain people until the deadline for objections has passed, as described in Chapter 2 of Part C - Administering the poll. Nomination papers cannot be inspected by anybody else at any time. Nomination papers may only be viewed and supplied to those who have a legal power to obtain documents. This may be a police officer using any powers they may have to take documents into their custody, or a court order.

With the exception of the home address form, you should keep nomination papers for one year in case they are needed for electoral petitions or prosecutions. If such legal proceedings are or are liable to take place, you should retain the nomination papers until the court has completed its process.

Home address forms must be kept securely stored for a period of 35 working days after the result has been declared and securely destroyed on the next working day after the 35-day period. However, if an election petition relating to the election is presented within the 35 working days, the home address forms must be kept securely until the conclusion of the petition proceedings (including any appeal from such proceedings). They must then be securely destroyed on the next working day following the conclusion of the proceedings or appeal.
