

| Electoral Commission Search

In this section How political parties are registered View current applications Comment on an application Party registration decisions Overview of registering political parties We are responsible for registering political parties in the UK. Political parties must register names, descriptions and emblems with us for use on ballot papers. The rules are in place to make ballot papers clear and easy to use. View current applications We publish names, descriptions and emblems which we are currently considering as part of our assessment process. Comment on an application You can comment on a particular name, description or emblem as part of our assessment process. Party registration decisions When we complete our assessment process, we publish our decisions. You can view our decisions on names, descriptions and emblems since 2019. Overview of sign up for updates Sign up for updates if you want us to keep you up to date when we receive new party names, descriptions or emblems for assessment. Download political party emblems You can download a zip file of political party emblems . You can see decisions taken since 2019 on this webpage . You can see a party's registered emblems by searching for their entry on the register . Related content Party registration decisions View our decisions on political party names, descriptions and emblems View current applications View the political party names, descriptions and emblems which we are currently considering as part of our assessment process Donations and loans Find out about donations and loans to a political party, individual or other organisation Registers of unincorporated associations Download and view the registers of unincorporated associations