main guidance section: Non-party campaigners: Council elections in Scotland What are non-party campaigners? Local campaigns at council elections The regulated period Spending limits Reporting Imprints Introduction This guidance is for non-party campaigners who are campaigning at council elections in Scotland. Under the Representation of the People Act 1983, non-party campaigners must follow rules about how much they can spend on campaign activities in the run up to certain elections.
This guidance explains how the rules apply. Book traversal links for Non-party
