

What are the rules for non-party campaigners? | Electoral Commission

Non-party campaigners: Where to start You are in the Non-party campaigners: Where to start section Home Non-party campaigners: Where to start View the navigation tree Go to main guidance section: Non-party campaigners: Where to start What are the rules for non-party campaigners? Elections Act 2022: Changes for non-party campaigners - overview Elections Act 2022: Code of Practice for non-party campaigners Elections Act 2022: New limits on campaigning by non-UK individuals and organisations Elections Act 2022: New notification threshold How to notify us to register as a non-party campaigner Elections Act 2022: Reporting threshold Elections Act 2022: Reporting at a UKPGE What spending is regulated? Does your campaign activity meet the purpose test? Purpose test: Intention Purpose test: Campaigning on an issue What happens if the policy I have been campaigning on is adopted by a political party? Purpose test: Charities and other organisations with limits on their political activities Purpose test: The regulated period in an early UK Parliamentary general election Staff costs and other overheads Joint campaigning What are the rules for non-party campaigners? There are two types of non-party campaigns. These are: General campaigns Local campaigns Campaigns for or against: one or more political parties parties or candidates that support or do not support particular policies other categories of candidate Campaigns for or against: one or more candidates in a particular constituency, ward or other electoral area Local campaigns Local campaigns are subject to a spending limit. For example, the limit for campaigning for or against one or more candidates in a constituency in a UK Parliamentary general election is £700. The Electoral Commission does not regulate local non-party campaigning and this guidance does not cover the local campaign rules in detail. Complaints about breaches of the local campaign rules should be made to the police. General campaigns The Electoral Commission regulates general non-party campaigns. Spending on the following activities can be regulated: election material canvassing and market research public rallies or public events press conferences or other media events transport in connection with publicising your campaign The rest of this guidance document is about the general campaign rules. Last updated: 24 May 2021 Book traversal links for What are the rules for non-party campaigners? Non-party campaigners: Where to start Elections Act 2022: Changes for non-party campaigners - overview